IV. Discussion

- > Higher education level does not reduce the gender disparity in unpaid activities.
- > It is also consistent with the time use studies in India.
- > The social and cultural aspects play a significant role in impacting unpaid work.
- > Women who attended domestic duties performed substantially more time on unpaid domestic work, and unemployed women spent more time on unpaid care work.
- > Though women work in the labour market, their responsibility for unpaid work did not fall.
- > There is no significant difference in the time allocation of unpaid work between working women and unemployed women.

About the Conference

Sullamussalam Science College is a prestigious first-grade aided college affiliated with the University of Calicut. It holds the esteemed approval of the University Grants Commission and proudly boasts an accreditation from the NAAC with an A grade. Situated amidst the serene and picturesque hills of Perumparamba, nestled along the banks of the Chaliyar River, the college is strategically located just one km away from the vibrant Areekode town along the Edavannappara road. Our institution is proudly administered by the Muslim Educational Association, a visionary educational organization established in 1994 as part of reformist Muslim educational movement in Malabar. The college's inception was rooted in the noble objective of providing high-quality education to the marginalized minority communities residing in the rural regions of Malabar.

Through unwavering dedication and the blessings of the Almighty, we have successfully realized our objectives, even in the face of various challenges. Today, our college stands on a solid foundation, prepared to embark on new and exciting ventures in higher education. As we continue to evolve, we are committed to implementing policies that will further elevate our academic standards, ensuring that our institution remains a beacon of educational excellence and a source of pride for all stakeholders.
